

This makes Crocodile feel really nervous and he goes out looking for his friends Orangutan, Elephant and Tiger. When he finds them, he is so scared that he cannot explain what is happening to him. Finally, he manages to tell them that one of his teeth is moving. He thinks it is absolutely terrible and his imagination comes up with loads of horrible things.

What a disaster!

Be patient

After a few days, Crocodile opens his mouth really wide so that his friends can see the tooth that is moving. He has noticed that it is looser and wants Elephant, Tiger and Orangutan to tell him how it looks to them. —You have to keep moving it —Orangutan tells him. —It still isn't ready to come out.

While the four of them are lying on their backs watching the clouds go by, when... Ta-DA! Crocodile's tooth falls out! He is holding it in his hand and there is a hole in his mouth. Crocodile feels calm and very happy. He knows that nothing awful will happen to him and it was all thanks to his best friends.

Here
it is!

