

She looks like a snob!

About a month ago, Jenny came to our school and nothing has been the same since. I'll never forget the first day she came to class. She was dressed in designer everything, including her hairdo with sparkles and butterfly clips. Her entire outfit matched, from head to toe! The instant I saw her, I knew exactly what kind of person she was: A snob!

I'm doomed!

Then my worst nightmare came true! Jenny and I had to do a science project together. I couldn't believe it! I would surely have to do all the work myself, because Jenny looked as if she didn't like getting dirty and building a volcano meant getting dirty. Besides, I'm sure Jenny is more worried about the way she looks than getting good grades!

She can cook too!

Jenny made her aunt a bowl of soup and a cup of tea, and then she asked me if I wanted to have a snack before we started our project. Jenny poured us a glass of milk and put lots of cookies that she had made earlier that morning, on a plate for us to share. They were so good that we ended up eating the whole lot. Even Aunt Edith had a few!
