

The little princess often dreams of traveling beyond the Kingdom of Water. She wants to leave those small islands behind to face the dragons that are terrorizing villages and towns. She is convinced that she alone will be able to tame and domesticate them.

Tweet
Tweet
Tweet

Her uncle and seven freckled cousins were given the task of building the forged iron bridge. Their island of bare rocks was soon connected with that of the royal palace. From now on, we will no longer have to row from one island to the other!

...Oooohhhh...

The princess hugs her new friend and then looks at her parents:

"A horse, no matter how small, must trot very far. My pony must feel free and not imprisoned on an island.

That's why I wanted bridges and flying foxes!"